Dear Sir,

The uncertainty of all parts that depend on the minds is disagreeable and disagree-able: the letters arrive in such numbers here at times it is difficult to answer them and not so fully as they ought to be and this indeed is the reason for my now addressing you: in my hurry in my last I for-got to mention that Carter should disperse when he can to advantage of my present stock of pipes and we can always buy again whenever I return to live at Derby which of course cannot be till this time to be known that as the house must be repaired and painted before the Dutchess enters it: I wish also to have Carter's opinion respecting the sheep: I have di-noted the Weather Post to be set and I want to be informed of his ideas respecting the lambs which will drop in the months of February and March next: at the same time I wish to attend to procuring or making the proper quantity of manure for the farm: I wish not to be displeas'd with the letter of the Trustees and have seen several more than they recommended: I hope all will be well with them and that every -ing assistance will be given: in the mean time the Duchess is advancing I hope and believe generally in her pregnancy and I trust her becoming in due time a mother will produce to me those permanent ad-vantages on which more in fact the matter for my marrying and for making the severe sacrifices which the father of nine children was oblig'd to submit to: time and patience will effect a great deal and I have experienced frequently the necessity of both: I have no reason to suspect either of them: but you must have a watchful eye upon Allen: which I never believe me,

I Dear Sir,

Yours sincerely

J. O. Williams
