Cottetown May 10th 1811.

Lady Sarah Napier presents her Compliments to Col Thomas & avails herself of the plea of very old acquain-tance & connection, to ask a favour of him which she hopes will be as little troublesome to him, as it will be <sup>most</sup> gratifying to her to know that he is so good as to undertake it, & that she may rely on his care for granting her request without delay. —

Lady Sarah has taken the liberty to remind his Royal Highness

Lady Sarah Napier

His Royal Highness the Prince Regent of his former goodness to her, & to bring herself back to his remembrance; after many years passed in affliction & a retirement from the great world, Lady Sarah is now in Ireland with her sister Lady Louisa Conolly, & being quite blind, she has found almost insurmountable difficulties before she could bring herself to address his Royal Highness, but having done so, she is most anxious her letters should be delivered privately to his Royal Highness, with her most respectful duty, & if

Thomas is so good as to do this, she will consider herself as under great obligation to him.
Lady Sarah will send these letters to a friend in England who she hopes will make no delay in forwarding them; her direction is Castletown Leislip near Dublin
